ence to Predict

MODERN CARTHAGEGreeks, In Meantime, Roll Back Waves of Italian Invaders(By Associated Press)
ROME, Nov. 18. — Benito Mussolini broke the silence of his five months at war today to promise "we will break Greece's back" if it takes a year; to swear that Britain lied in reporting destruction of half of Italy's battleships and to vow that the conflict will go on until England is annihilated.Bitterly, Il Duce called Britain
"the modern Carthage," likening it to that ancient power which, by means of naval might, gripped both shores of the Mediterranean. He charged the Greeks with "absolute complicity" in a long-standing British plot to make Italy impotent.He acknowledged that no lightning war could be waged in the mud and mountains of Greece, but declared that Italy had the men and means to break that nation unassisted.

Bill Green's Answer

ATHENS, Nov. 18.—The Italians sent wave after wave of infantry crashing against Greek mountain positions today in an effort to prevent the capture of Koritza, Fas-dis invasion base, but the Greeks reported they repelled all attacks and gained new ground as well.In their desperate attempt to thwart the Greek ring of steel being drawn around this most important city in Albania, the Italians were said also to have thrown a large force of dive-bombers into the battle.The Greek air force, aided by Britain's RAF, itself bombed Italian positions heavily and pummeled troop-laden roads leading out of Koritza, which is 10 miles inside Albania.Greeks reported Italian mechanized columns were hopelessly trapped north of Koritza and foreign sources said one column of 130 Italian tanks had fled into Yugoslavia.Dean D. Groner, 41,

They're Waiting for Big Parade

Queer-looking individuals, these. They're waiting for the big Santa Claus day parade here next Saturday.Most people believe in Santa Claus because they believe in love, and it is for these that Santa Claus exists, as he is nothing more and nothing less than the personification of love, happiness, hope, faith, and charity. What a sad world this would be if most people did not believe in love and in Santa Claus.Even though this world is being torn asunder by the great war raging across the water, fortunately the great majority of people live and thrive on the love they know and feel for others, and the sweetest love that can be ever known is the love we give away.True love asks for no receipt, no return, and no reward. It is never loaned, never leased, never sold; it is always given away. No one can ever know that Santa Claus actually, really, and truly exists unless they give their love to their fellowmen, and then to them Santa Claus is born to live forever.It is this vast majority of good people who live Santa Claus, think Santa Claus, love Santa Claus, and know Santa Claus that will join together to pay homage to the jolly good fellow when he arrives

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 18
—Taking up the gavel for the last time as CIO president, John L.
Lewis, with tears in his eyes, told CIO's convention delegates today that he was stepping down as their leader, and urged them to unite their ranks and support whoever they name as his successor.

Given Ovation

To a hushed throng which a few minutes earlier had given him a thunderous ovation, Lewis said:
"I won't be with you long. I have done my work and in a few days I'll be out of this office."It was his keynote speech, serious and emotional in tempo and carrying in it an urgent plea to the CIO to remain united or it would "not long endure."Lewis' term as president expires at the close of the convention. It is expected that Philip Murray will be named as his successor. In giving notice that he was about to get out of the CIO leadership, Lewis fulfilled the promise he made to retire if President Roosevelt was re-elected for a third term.

"Lie!" Asserts Lewis

Lewis drew thunderous applause as he declared that those who claim the CIO policies are inspired by "Communist, Nazi, or any other such philosophy" lie, "and that," he shouted, "goes for Old Lady Green down in New Orleans."His reference was to AFL Leader William Green who was reported to have forecast a CIO split over charges of Communism.Slowly he told the delegates that for himself, he was going to step down from the CIO leadership and asked that his successor be given
"your support."Mrs. Della Seederly

FAR FROM THE MADDEN CROWD

Tell-tale evidence that the national labor relations board really has been suffering from personality trouble is being supplied at long last by some of the personalities. As soon as it was made known that J. Warren Madden, chairman of the board since its inception, would be kicked upstairs into a more remunerative but less influential job, the Madden crowd threatened a walkout. Many of the crowd's fellow citizens, some of them in Washington, hope nothing will be allowed to interfere with it.

Mr. Madden seems to have been a conscientious administrator of the national labor relations act. Like most human beings, he had a bias on the subject of labor relations and like most human beings he permitted it to influence his judgment. In this he was aided by the act and the spirit of the administration that appointed him. In short, Mr. Madden was experimenting with one of the new instruments of public power created by the Roosevelt administration—an executive agency which performed simultaneously the functions of cop on the beat, public prosecutor, jury, and judge—and he went the limit.

It is charged that under his guidance the labor board not only aimed to please organized labor, at the expense of friendly relations between employers and employees, but also aimed to please one faction of organized labor. That was less Mr. Madden's fault, perhaps, than the fault of a law which professed to administer justice on an arbitrary basis of class distinction. It can't be done in a republic. There cannot be one kind of justice for employers, another kind for employees.

If that one point can be made clear in the ruckus over the labor relations board, something will be gained. The board so far has pleased no one but the particular faction it favored. It has incurred the criticism of all other persons who have had dealings with it—and if it ceases to please its per faction under Chairman Madden, it will incur that faction's criticism, too. Perhaps with Mr. Madden out and his crowd out with him, the labor relations board can get back where government agencies belong, midway between the people they are supposed to serve.

SIMPLE AS TESTING FUDGE

It happens to be Alfred P. Sloan Jr. who is first to come to grips with the problem of a restricted work week in a defense emergency. Whenever the slack of unemployment has been taken up, Mr. Sloan proposes, the five-day week should be abolished. Meanwhile, the chairman of the board of General Motors recommends that the requirement of time and a half for overtime beyond 40 hours a week be eliminated.

Arthur Krock reports that in Washington this kind of talk makes the more leftist New Dealers almost as furious as it made them to listen to Wendell Willkie talk about production as the key to recovery. Aside from sound and fury, however, there seems to be a simple test to apply to the 40-hour week to determine its justification while national rearmament is proceeding.

Whenever public employment agencies, closely coordinated with unemployment agencies, report inability to meet demand for types of workers above the unskilled level, the 40-hour week has served its purpose under the New Deal; the purpose was to reduce unemployment. At that point, if rearmament still be an unfinished job, continuation of the 40-hour week no longer would be part of a social program, but a menace to national safety.

THE WORLD WILL LONG REMEMBER

Wanton destruction of historic Coventry by German bombers was admittedly an act of revenge. German officials claimed it was to balance accounts for British bombing of Munich a few nights ago.

Of course, the Germans did a more effective job, virtually destroying Coventry with wave after wave of bombers sent from bases across the channel. The British bombed Munich with a few ships from long range. They embarrassed the natives, who happened to be entertaining Hitler and Molotov that evening, but didn't kill them by the hundreds.

Many Americans now feel that if the time ever comes when British air power can do the job, Germany should be paid off bomb by bomb and death by death for the damage done in Britain. That would be scant satisfaction, but might even up the emotional score.

The odd thing about it is that the British are divided on the advisability of adopting retaliatory mass bombing as a military policy. The British Institute of Public Opinion found as many disapprovals for bombing civilian populations indiscriminately as it found approvals in a recent survey—46 percent on each side with 8 percent undecided. A survey might reveal the same popular indecision in Germany, but there will be no survey in Germany.

ITALY NEEDS NO APOLOGY

Italian reverses in Greece reflect no discredit. Experts agree that whatever else may have gone wrong, the fact the Italian soldiers weren't mad at the enemy had a lot to do with what happened.

Later, perhaps, Italian soldiers will do better when they have been reorganized. They still may lack incentive, but their superior equipment and numbers will prevail against the Greeks eventually. They may become conquerors in spite of themselves.

Whatever happens, it will be worth remembering as a tribute to the Italian people that when a dictator ordered them to revert to savagery and wipe out an innocent and almost defenseless nation enough of them gaged on the order to make a mess of the first attempt. There still are human beings under dictatorship who balk at murder for murder's sake.

Americans are better acquainted with Italians than with any other foreign language group in this country. They have admired the Italians for their prevailing good humor and generosity. If Italians aren't being misrepresented by a breast-beating, war-mongering leadership, then Americans haven't learned anything about them from their hundreds of thousands of relatives who helped to build this country and now are helping to make it go.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, November 19

A PARTICULARLY lively and interesting day, with things taking a sudden and intriguing turn, which may upset all previous plans and tactics, judging by the shrewd and subtle aspects of the planets. All relating to promotional enterprises, new propositions, publicity, writings, renewal of contracts and agreements are to the fore and calling for much discretion, strategy and keen insight in order to reap the greatest benefits. Be amenable to change should it appear advisable. There may be social reaction rather disappointing, irritating.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very lively and eventful year, with much commotion and surprise, perhaps intrigue and undercover activities. New matters, innovations, unusual adventures, in which writings contracts, advertising and promotion have public appeal and deep significance, which all for far vision, cleverness and subtlety as well as strategy in order to rise to the ambitious climax aimed at. Sudden or surprising reactions may arise in the personal, social or even affectional relations unless circumspect and rational point of view be maintained. Change and travel are probable.

A child born on this day should be exceedingly clever, resourceful, original and shrewd. It will be equipped for much popularity in any of the professions.

THE COST OF WAR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—A survey of the billions being poured out by the world's great powers for military implements indicated today that the United States has barely started down payments on the modern mechanized fighting machine planned for defense.

The best available statistics, by no means complete, place the minimum current arms expenditures of the six major nations at close to $50,000,000,000 annually. The outlays of numerous smaller countries would send the total higher, and no one has yet begun to estimate the monetary value of the lost lives, destroyed wealth and devastated areas in those nations bearing the brunt of war.

WONDER WHAT HITLER WOULD DO ABOUT IT?

Embattled Britain, for example, recently increased her spending to a rate of nearly $20,000,000,000 annually, or about as much as all of the United Kingdom's 47,000,000 people earned in a pre-war year.

In Canada, with a national income of about $4,000,000,000, the armament budget for the current year is about $810,000,000. Figures for other countries of the United Kingdom are not available.

Next year the lag between voting money and spending it will be shortening, and the United States will be sluicing out more and more of the $17,000,000,000 which congress approved for national defense at its present session—and of additional billions expected to be voted after Jan. 1.

The "Broadway Stomach"

Living Fast and Tough in the Modern Age

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Dr. Joseph F. Montague has coined a new term "Broadway Stomach". He considers that to be the condition of the stomachs of the people who live on Broadway. Broadway, he hastens to add, is really a state of mind rather than a definite place. It means people who live fast and tough in the modern age. I should think that there would be a lot of "Broad kidneys" and Broadway livers", too.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The Broadway Stomach, as I understand it, is one which is subjected to "commuter's commotion", following the morning gulp known as breakfast; where the hurry-hurry of high pressure salesmanship is the prelude to lunch; where the blare of jazz is the accompaniment of dinner.

Broadway Stomach is a stomach with the jitters—jitters brought about by the high tension of life as it is lived in the year 1940.

Stomach Pretty Tough

There is undoubtedly a good deal to this, although I personally feel that the stomach is a pretty tough old party and will do a good deal more for us than we give it credit for. I have been hearing some talks lately about how terrible it is to cram two or three kinds of food into the stomach and I am not sure that I don't think this comes under the heading of "scare the tar out of em" form of propaganda, of which we have had too much in the past. I do agree, however, that worry, haste and fretfulness should be dispensed from the diningroom and I can subscribe to some of Doctor Montague's maxims, particularly the following:

"Throughout the day, eat small, light meals. Have your largest meal at the end of the day when free of business worries."

"Don't eat when you are very tired. Take a short rest right before dinner."

"Try to take some nourishment in the middle of the forenoon and some in the middle of the afternoon. In the forenoon, a glass of milk is suggested; in the afternoon, a cup of tea."

Avoid Soft Foods

"Avoid eating soft foods that require no chewing. If you do take them, eat some toast at the same time so that you will have to do some chewing.

"Occasionally skip a meal or, possible, fast an entire day."

"Make your meals a pleasant occasion. Park your troubles in the office."

"Don't fall for diet fads. They are often unscientific and may be suited to your particular needs."

The book Broadway Stomach, by Dr. Joseph F. Montague, is published by Simon and Schuster.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. C. P. — "What fruits and vegetables have no sugar in them, or, which contain the least sugar?"

Answer—I know of no fruit that does not contain sugar and vegetables that do not contain starch. (The distinction between fruits and vegetables is difficult of definition—a tomato is strictly a fruit although we ordinarily call it a vegetable). The fruits which contain the least sugar are grapefruit (5 per cent), oranges (10 per cent), peaches (10 per cent), pineapple (10 per cent) and watermelon (10 per cent). Vegetables with the lowest starch (5 per cent) are lettuce, spinach, string beans, asparagus, cucumbers, tomatoes, eggplant, cabbage, broccoli, vegetable marrow.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, 235 E. 45th St., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Science has pointed out that Camels are definitely slower-burning (see left). That means a smoke with more mildness, more coolness, and more flavor.

Nazi Bombs Level Historic Cathedral at Coventry

Wave after wave of Nazi bombers unloaded tons of bombs upon the industrial city of Coventry, "Detroit" of England, leaving it a crumbling mass of debris and fireswept ruin with thousands dead and injured. This is historic St. Michael's Cathedral, centuries old, and of pure Gothic architecture, with only its 303-foot spire undamaged. Berlin reported 500 planes were used in the 10 1/2 hour raid upon the hapless city.

Today's Pattern

HOUSECOAT OR SHIRTWAISTER Pattern 4613

Here's smart two-timing style in Anne Adams' Pattern 4613! It will carry you right around the clock, with first a trim shirtwaister for a busy working or shopping day; then a becoming housecoat for end-of-the-day relaxing. No side blazer is needed, for there's a center-front fastening that may take the form of a buttoning or the popular fly-front-effect—the latter closing with a concealed zipper or snaps. Aren't the revers well-cut? The bloused bodice lines, so softly flattering, are held smooth at the shoulders by all-around yokes. Chose between long or short sleeves, and don't forget to add a buttoned pocket for jaunty style. You can buckle or tie the optional belt—either way is smart.

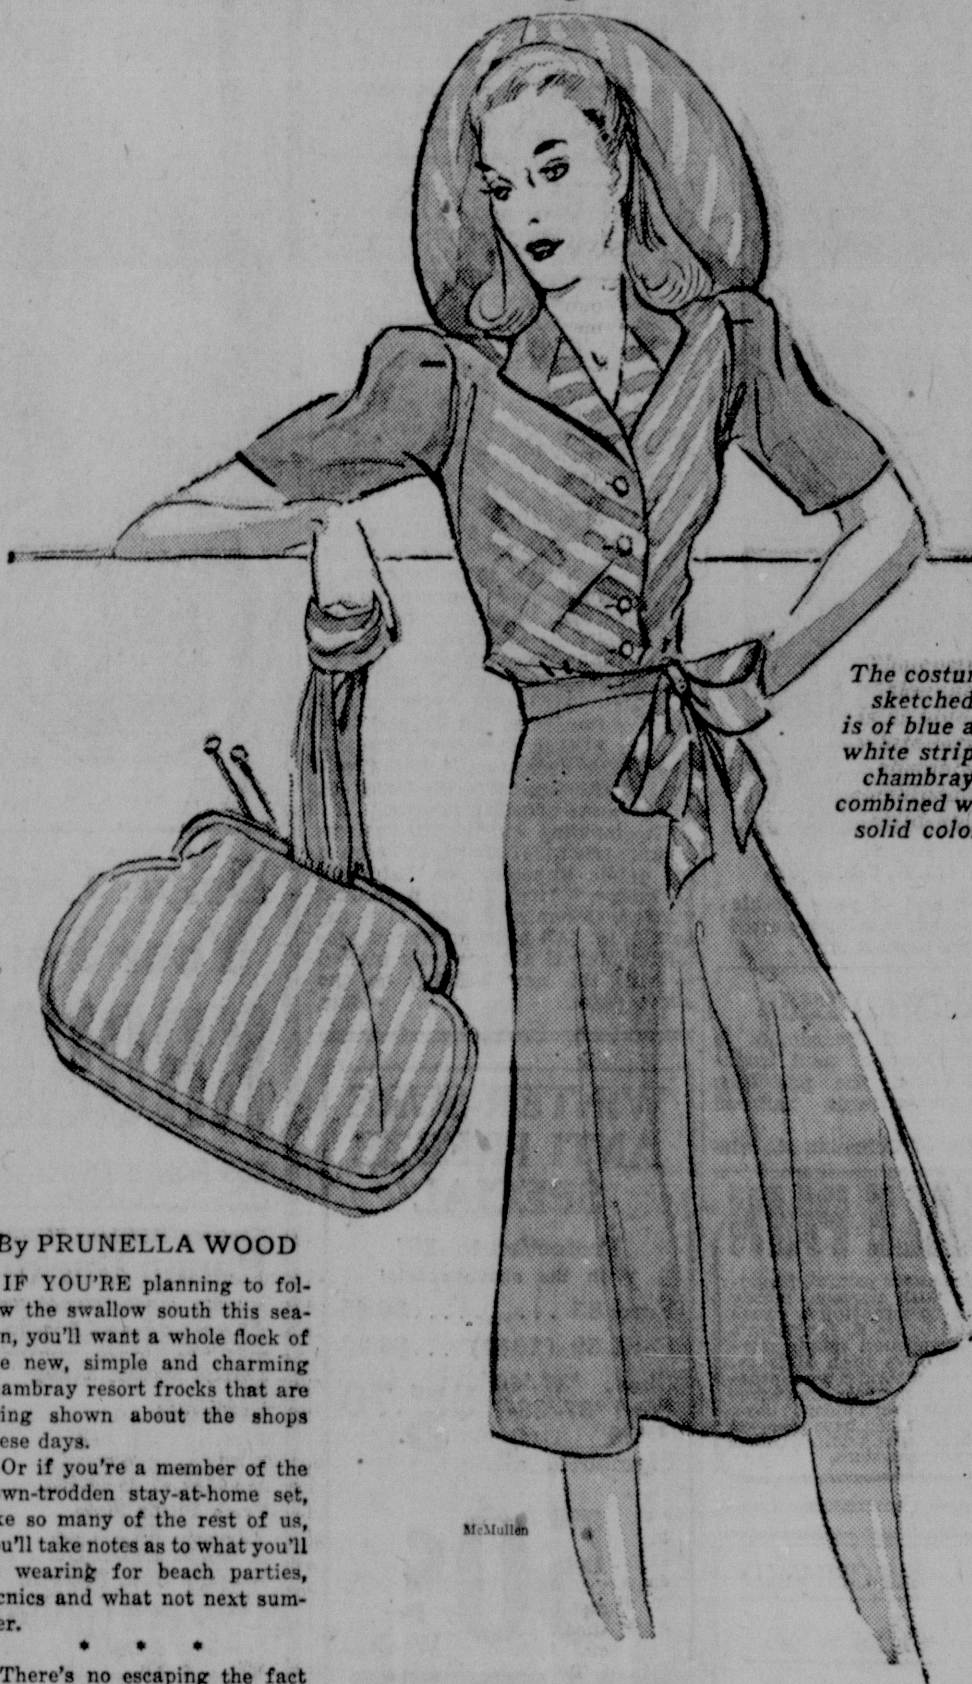

Pattern 4613 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34. Size 6, dress, takes 4 yards 39 inch fabric.

Chambray Charm

The costume sketched is of blue and white striped chambray, combined with solid color.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

IF YOU'RE planning to follow the swallow south this season, you'll want a whole flock of the new, simple and charming chambray resort frocks that are being shown about the shops these days.

Or if you're a member of the down-trodden stay-at-home set, like so many of the rest of us, you'll take notes as to what you'll be wearing for beach parties, picnics and what not next summer.

There's no escaping the fact that the simple shirtwaist frock is still the perennial favorite with well-dressed American women, in woollens for winter wear, in cottons for summer.

When you supply a bit of contrast in color and fabric, add a matching hat and huge knitting bag, you're sure of being a stand-out either on the sands of Palm Beach or in the less pretentious background of your own backyard.

If you choose chambray for your resort or around-the-house clothes, you will have the thrifty knowledge that no matter how often you wash them, the colors will come up fresh and smiling.

Chambrays, you know, have been the favorite of fabric-wise women since the days when Grandmother was a girl. Remember those crisp, gay-colored school dresses you had when you were the belle of the Sixth Grade?

Well, the same good, old-fashioned fabric is back, in grown-up styles and clear pastel colors so lovely they'll make you practically weep with joy.

Here's a good notation to paste in the top of that wardrobe trunk you're taking south—when in doubt, resort to chambray.

Hold back the years - to look well - to feel strong

Thousands know of the amazing benefits of S.S.S. Tonic to help build rich, red blood... to increase the appetite... to aid digestion

If you are past middle-life you will want to give particular attention to two important body functions—one, to keep your natural stomach digestive juices flowing... two, to keep your blood rich and healthy.

Frequently, as the years advance, the stomach becomes sluggish in pouring out its digestive juices to make use of the food eaten... likewise, wear and strain of worry, overwork, colds and sickness often reduce one's blood strength. Now you may rebuild your blood strength and restore sluggish stomach digestion, in the absence of an organic trouble or focal infection, with the famous S.S.S. Tonic.

S.S.S. acts two ways In S.S.S. Tonic you go after the trouble in two ways... first you increase the appetite and better your stomach digestion—thus making better use of the food you eat—secondly, thin, weak, watery blood is made rich and red again thus giving you a boost in energy.

join the happy thousands S.S.S. may be just what you need to get you on the right road to health and happiness again... it helps build sturdy health... that's why so many say it "makes you feel like yourself again."

Hurt In Collision

Guy O. Roland, Jr., 24, of Alliance, suffered lacerations of the head, bruises and contusions of the body when his automobile was struck by another car on Route 62, one and a half miles west of Westville, at 8:30 a. m. today. The other car, which skidded on the slippery highway, was operated by Harry G. Iler, 32, also of Alliance, who was unhurt, state patrolmen said.

Effective Dry Cleaning Demands Materials And Men Of The Highest Type

SPOT REMOVING DIFFICULT JOB

Reliable Dry Cleaner Must Have Knowledge of Chemistry

The cleaning of a soiled dress, suit, drapes or other fabric is a much more complicated process than most people imagine.

This is particularly true when the cleaners find a job of "spotting" on their hands.

"Spotting" is, as the word implies, the art of removing spots from fabrics and it really is an art in itself. In this particular phase of dry cleaning is the skill of the cleaner exemplified and in this particular line is the ability of the Paris Cleaners recognized.

The Par's has just about a complete laboratory, including the chemicals which are so necessary in "spotting". When a spot of fruit juice, or some other acid substance, is found on a dress, for instance, it is first the job of the cleaner to determine just what type of acid it is; then to select exactly the proper type of chemicals, or combination of chemicals, to remove that spot without, at the same time, harming the delicate fabric.

And this calls for real skill. However, the Paris prides itself on its equipment and experienced staff. It stands back of every job.

View of Paris "Laboratory"

Herewith is pictured a section of the Paris Cleaners "laboratory" from which come the preparations used in removing spots.

Owens Modern Equipment For Body Straightening

Matt Klein Point Out That Wheel Shimmy Is Dangerous, and Expensive In Tire Wear

If any motorist is having trouble with "shimmying" of the front wheels and excessive wear on tires, it's time to have Matt Klein at 813 Newgarden street correct the trouble.

The Matt Klein's Body Service shop has the most modern and exacting equipment to check alignment, provide frame and axle straightening and offer wheel balancing. The system is similar to that used by many automobile manufacturers and has the endorsement of all builders of cars. This work can be done without tearing down the car or without requiring lay-up of several days for a car. Without removing axles or dismounting the auto or truck Matt Klein straightens the axle or other part without application of heat, or without danger of weakening a part.

Have Skilled Workers

No trouble with "temper" of metal in a car or truck frame is experienced is a result of carrying out this important work. Equipment on hand will accommodate any size of auto.

A trained worker restores axles and other parts to exact precision and provide wheel balance service. Nothing is left to guesswork. Precision instruments are used in all jobs to make a check and assure proper correction. As much as 30 per cent wear on a tire can be found, and thus saved by alignment of parts and adjusting of wheels.

A car out of alignment is a vehicle possessing potential hazards. In addition to constant wear and more strain for the driver, the car is constantly in a condition whereby any trouble or danger might be experienced.

Trained workers handle every type of job about an auto body—inside and out. Upholstery work, metal straightening and repair, welding, glass installation are only a few of the jobs performed. Cars believed hopelessly wrecked are overhauled to look like new.

AUTO CHECKUP DEMANDS CARE

Guaranteed Work Turned Out at E. L. Grate Repair Shop

Complete adjustment of a car for winter driving has become more than a haphazard routine day, according to the E. L. Grate Motor Co., on S. Ellsworth Ave.

A winter check-up is a "must" on every motorist's winter program. Safety as well as protection for one's automobile demands giving attention to many winter adjustments.

Play safe with that change of oil and lubricants for fall and winter driving, urges Grate. Expert workmen handle the job in the modern lubrication department of the Grate garage. All the most recent equipment for lubrication work is provided in this garage.

Not Difficult Task

A motorist does not have to make a hard job of getting this work done. Just step to the telephone, dial 3426 and have a garage employee call for your car. The work will be done and the auto returned according to one's request.

If one prefers, he can drive his car to the garage and have the work done while he looks over the new 1941 models of Ford and Mercury in the showrooms or transacts some business downtown. Many people in the Salem district now are asking for demonstrations of these remarkable new cars.

Complete Adjustment

The important thing, however, is to have a winter check-up made now and have it done right. Guaranteed lubrication is provided in the garage and its skilled mechanics will tune-up the motor for winter use. Water will be drained from the radiator and fresh water and anti-freeze fluid will be substituted.

Gate's complete motor tuneup means a cleaning and adjusting of all vital parts. Close attention is given to all parts and areas of a car receiving severe strain during winter driving. This inexpensive service may prevent costly repair bills later and add comfort to winter travel.

FARM BUILDING MUST BE SOLID

Water-proofed Structures More Than Pay For Their Cost

Weather-proofed farm buildings pay their way many times over. Deterioration caused by the elements is prevented, a catastrophe that has resulted in heavy financial loss to many farmers.

Too often, farmers wait until their possessions and crops have been destroyed before realizing that in many cases such loss was preventable. Farm buildings are a perfect example of this. An entire harvest has been ruined simply through failure to check the storage space against the dangers of the weather.

The Damascus Lumber Co., of Damascus knows how important this is and they advise that a check-up be made, now, before bad weather arrives.

The total cost of keeping property in good repair is insignificant compared to the loss through deterioration and the possibility of crop spoilage.

It's a Pitcher's Battle

BEACH COMBERS IN SECOND WEEK

Popular Entertainers Are Playing to Capacity Crowds

The Beach Combers, starting their second week at the Silver cocktail room, Metzger hotel, are proving themselves one of the most popular entertainment attractions of the season here.

Opening their engagement last week, this Hawaiian ensemble has been playing to capacity crowds, and from all indications will be here for some time, or until other engagements become effective.

Two outstanding members of the group are Frank Ramos, talented singer and entertainer, and the girl member of the group who not only sings but exemplifies, in flawless style, the widely known Hawaiian hula.

THANKSGIVING NEEDS FLOWERS

Beauty, As Well As Utilitarian Turkey, Is Essential

It's only three days until Thanksgiving, the beginning of the new social and holiday season.

Families will be reunited friends will be invited in and everything done to make the Thanksgiving dinner one to be enjoyed and remembered for years to come.

Of course the turkey will be the main attraction. But of just as much importance are appropriate decorations. Flowers in most cases will be provided for the table center piece, and vases on the mantel, radio or odd tables, to give the feast day that added touch so important to the well planned occasion.

One would be incomplete without the other. There are more than merely physical desires to be gratified at occasions such as these if they are to prove successful and it would be difficult to find anything better than flowers to achieve this result.

If you have not already done so, telephone Endres and Gross, local florists. Simply give them an idea of what you want and they will do the rest. You will find that a small investment will yield a big income in pleasure.

Persons who want anything, know The News is the Want Medium in this vicinity. So read it.

Quakers Tie With South, 7-7, On Muddy Youngstown Field

Locals Hope For Another Upset as They Make Ready For Annual Alliance Tilt

Surprising Red and Black Eleven Plays South Off Their Feet; Desperate 28-Yard Pass In Last Period Gives Foe Tie

Although outplaying a favored Youngstown South team practically the entire game, the underdog Quakers had to be satisfied with a 7-7 tie in the mud and cold of Youngstown South stadium Saturday before a shivering crowd of about 300 fans.

Acquitting themselves valiantly against a team which, after its victory over East Liverpool, was generally conceded to be at least a couple of touchdowns better than the Quakers, Coach Carl Schroeder's eleven now turns its attention to the "big game" and the final game of the season—the Turkey day tilt at Alliance Thursday.

Early in the first period against South, after Weaver had got off an eight-yard kick that went out of bounds on the South 33, the Salem crew came to life and on five plays battered the Youngstown line to the eight-yard stripe with Mar. Wukotich leading the attack. On the next play "Wuk" circled the South right end and carried two tacklers over the goal line with him for the Quakers' only touchdown. The Salem fullback also plunged the extra points to give Salem a 7 to 0 lead.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 18.—The Colonels are tabbing Whirlaway and Bryan Station as the two good ones to take a flyer on in the Kentucky Derby winter book. The New York Boxing commission probably will suspend Al Davis for repeatedly fouling Fritz Zivic the other night, but Broadway is betting Al will be reinstated in less than six months and permitted to fight Zivic again—for a $100,000 gate. All four defeats handed Tulane this season were by teams coached by disciples of the late Knute Rockne.

Ragtime News Review

Toot that whistle! Ring that bell! Dartmouth also stopped Cornell! Princeton barely beat the Yales by letting Fetters tote the mails. And did John Harvard go to down in winning 14-0 from Brown? By holding Navy to a tie, Columbia showed the skeptics why a lot of folks still have the notion they're the gem of any ocean. Just harken to that shout arising: "three cheers for de-emphasizing!"

What a dizzy football day for addicts in the U. S. A. for take our word, it was no fluke when Carolina upset Duke, nor when Iowa leaped to fame by halting mighty Notre Dame. That Boston college-Georgetown bout was hardest fought of all, no doubt, but we think Stanford rates a cheer for staying the upper tier. And don't forget that Rambling Wreck that's better known as Georgia Tech. Hurry, Watson, fetch that shot. A lot of guys are on the spot.

kicks kept South deep in their own territory most of the time. Only once did they push the Quakers back to their 18-yard stripe and this by a punt. At no time was Salem ever seriously threatened.

South's running attack failed to the extent that it chalked up only one first down in these first two periods.

Greene Boots Accurately

The third quarter was the same story as the Salem team never permitted their opponents to reach midfield. The outstanding feature of this period was Carroll Greene's punt from South's 35 that rolled out of bounds on the one-yard line.

As the fourth quarter wore away it appeared as if Salem had the victory cinched.

The Steel City boys, however, scored their tying points after Greene had kicked out of bounds on the South 20.

A screen pass from Weaver to DeMichele clicked to the 27, Ruse hit through his own left tackle to the 33 and a first down. DeMichele gained four more yards and Jeffries was stopped at the line of scrimmage.

South returned to the air as Ruse passed to Colla, who threw a lateral to DeMichele, the play finally stopping on South's 47. This play gave the Youngstowners their third first down of the contest.

BEARS FIGURE ON REDSKINS IN TITLE TILT

Chicagoans want Revenge For 7-3 Defeat Last Sunday

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—The Chicago Bears have a little unfinished business with the Washington Redskins and hope to settle it next month.

The once-defeated Redskins whipped the Bears Sunday, 7 to 3. The outcome left the victors a virtual clinch to win the Eastern Division championship, needing only one more triumph in two remaining games for the clincher.

The Bears, having won six of nine engagements, still lead Green Bay, which lost to New York, 7 to 3, in a dull game. Each team has two games to go with the Chicagoans heavily favored to take the Western sectional title and thereby qualify to meet the easterners for the championship in December.

Brooklyn Smears Rams

Brooklyn lambasted the Cleveland Rams, 29 to 14, for its sixth win in nine games. The Dodgers spotted the invaders two touchdowns before Ace Parker took charge. He ran 68 yards with an intercepted pass for the first marker, passed for the next two, set up the fourth with a 38-yard run and held the ball when Ralph Knerchal booted a 43-yard field goal.

Detroit humbled the last place Philadelphia eleven, 21 to 0, leaving the hapless Eagles without a win in nine games.

The Boston Bears finally snapped the Columbus Bulls' nine-game winning streak, but the Bulls still lead the American Professional Football league race.

Checking the Columbus' ground and aerial attacks, the Bears held the league-pacers to a 0-0 tie in the Columbus yesterday. It was the only league game of the day, snow forcing indefinite postponement of a New York at Buffalo game.

In an exhibition contest at Milwaukee, the Kenosha Cardinals slapped down the Milwaukee Chiefs, 13 to 3.

Lisbon, Columbiana Battle To 7-7 Tie

LISBON, Nov. 18.—Columbiana High school's gridiron team and Lisbon High's eleven battled to a 7-7 tie here Saturday on a cold and muddy field.

Columbiana's score came late in the first period when a Lisbon fumble was recovered by a Columbiana man on Lisbon's nine-yard line. On the next play Hollinger took the ball over for th score. Hollinger's plunge failed to produce the extra point.

Lisbon scored early in the second quarter after the ball was brought from its own 35 to the Columbiana two by Loch, Cartwright and Pike. Cartwright plunged over from the two-yard line for the tally. Loch's plunge for the extra point was checked.

The last half of the game proved uneventful although both teams passed numerous times. During the entire game Columbiana attempted eight passes, completing only three while Lisbon attempted 11 passes and completed two.

Dartmouth Heads Await "Fifth Down" Decision On 7-3 Cornell Victory

Writers' Charts Agree That Big Red Gridders Had Five Downs; Dartmouth To Get Win If Movies Show Mistake

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 18.—Official Dartmouth continued its silence over the outcome of its football game with Cornell and its unprecedented "fifth down" complications today while jubilant undergraduates and alumni extended their self-styled victory celebration into a third day.

Head Coach Earl Blaik declined to comment on the game-deciding ruling that Referee William H. Friesell made in awarding undefeated Cornell, then trailing 3-0, another down six yards from the end-zone. Young insisted that the ball belonged to Dartmouth on its 20-yard line.

That ruling gave Halfback Walt Scholl an opportunity to complete a touchdown pass to Bill Murphy. Friesell disregarded Capt. Lou Young's protests that a Dartmouth player already had grounded a fourth-down Cornell pass in his end-zone. Young insisted that the ball belonged to Dartmouth on its 20-yard line.

Most newspaper writers' charts agreed that Cornell had rushed three times and had an incomplete pass in the series that included the play enabling it to end the game with a 7-3 lead.

Will Abide By Decision

Reports from a New York City developing firm that films made of the game upheld Captain Young's protest failed to draw any comment from Blaik. He indicated his willingness to abide by any decision that Friesell, Asa Bushnell, head of the Eastern Intercollegiate football association, or Cornell's athletic authorities reached after reconsideration.

Friesell, contacted at his Pittsburgh home, said he would be the first to admit an error if one was revealed by the game's motion pictures.

President Edmund E. Day, of Cornell, and Athletic Director Jim Lynah, in a joint statement issued soon after the game, said the score would be recorded as Dartmouth 3, Cornell 0, if an official investigation revealed that its team's winning touchdown was made on an illegal fifth down.

Riotous Finish to Davis-Zivic Bout

The scheduled ten-round, non-title scrap between welterweight champion Fritz Zivic, of Pittsburgh, and Al "Bummy" Davis, ends in a riot in the second round. This picture was made just after Referee Cavanagh (right) disqualified Davis, and a second jumped into the ring to hold Zivic back from leaping at his tormentor. Davis has broken away from Cavanagh after attempting to kick him and is again advancing on Zivic. Davis was disqualified for repeated fouling.

"I BELONG TO YOU" by ROSAMOND DU JARDIN

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

"I'm camping out there, Griff. I'm in the general direction of the hangar. Brent had told March about it. I just flew up from Kansas City this morning. It must have been spring or something—anyway, I had this unaccountable urge for the open spaces. But I've already begun to grow bored with my own company, so I'm glad you dropped in."

March laughed. She hadn't felt so much like laughing in a long time. She accused him, "You don't sound in the least like an irate property owner whose rights have been trampled upon."

"On the contrary, I'm grateful. I didn't know anyone else ever came up so early." Griff's glance was warmly personal. "Who did you say you were?"

"March Randolph. And I didn't exactly come up—"

"I'm sorry," Griff interrupted. "I must be getting deaf. It sounds to me like you're saying March."

"I am saying March. But, after all, first names aren't particularly important."

"Ah, but you're wrong there," declared Griff sententiously. "First names make all the difference. I met a girl once and she was perfectly beautiful. Almost, but not quite, as beautiful as you. And then I found out her name was Bedelia and from that moment on I couldn't bear the sight of her. You see, I had a poodle once and its name was Bedelia. And the little beast bit me, for no reason whatever, mind you. It was very sad. But a man simply can't work himself into a romantic fervor over a girl who reminds him of a poodle that bit him. And she had red eyes, too. The dog, I mean, not the girl. But I like March." He added cheerfully. "It has no unpleasant associations whatever. I can't seem to place the Randolphs, though. Are you new people at the lake or are you visiting someone?"

March shook her head. Her tone was conspiratorial. "I'm a native."

"No! You don't mean one of those hardy souls who hibernate in the winter? But it isn't possible! All the natives have chilblains and wear sealskin caps with ear-flaps—"

"Not," March interrupted, laughing, "in May. All the sealskin caps have been laid away in mothballs long before this. As for the chilblains, they haven't had time to develop yet. You see, I haven't been a native very long."

"Randolph," Griff repeated thoughtfully. His blue gaze brightened. "I get it! There's a Mrs. Randolph who owns a lot of property around here, early settler and all that sort of thing. Lives over that way in a little white house. She's your mother—or your grandmother?"

March corrected. "I'm Mrs. Randolph, too. Mrs. Brent Randolph." Griff reached out with the utmost solemnity and shook her hand. "Well, as I always say, it's a small world—I remember Brent. We used to go fishing together. He's tall and dark and sort of quiet, isn't he? But someone told me he wasn't around any more."

"He lived in Chicago for a while. That's where we met. But we're here now—for good, I guess."

She went on to tell Griff something of Brent's plans. And he listened with unfeigned interest, asking occasional questions, drawing her on. But it wasn't in him to remain serious very long. The terrace echoed with their laughter as the sun dipped gradually behind the encircling wall of pines, as the spring wind cooled.

When March rose finally she felt relaxed and cheerful. Griff Morgan's light-hearted banter had done much to dissipate the cold, hard core of restlessness and boredom she had carried in her heart. She couldn't help being grateful.

Griff rose, too. His tone was coaxing. "Don't go yet. I can't offer you tea, but I mix a mean cocktail."

March declined, smiling, and Griff suggested, "A sandwich, then. But no," he shook his fair head regretfully. "The sandwich is out. I investigated at noon, and there seems to be nothing in the larder but caviar and a spot of sardines. Nothing substantial like bread and butter."

"You mean," March commiserated, "you lunched in solitary state on caviar and cocktails?"

Solemnly Griff concurred. "And I'll dine on sardines and cocktails. At this rate I'll be higher than a kite by morning and in no fit condition for the trip home—unless you take pity on me."

"I take pity on you? How can I help?"

"You might," Griff suggested. "Invite me over to your house for dinner. After all, we're neighbors...."

Brent could hear laughter as he crossed the porch of his grandmother's house that evening. And the sound heartened him, making him hurry a little in spite of his tiredness making him wonder. March had seemed so quiet lately, less prone to merriment than she had been. And the gradual dimming of her bright spirits had evoked in Brent a sense of guilt, a feeling of having failed her. He knew he hadn't been very good company these last weeks. Nor had he had as much time as he would have liked to devote to his wife. But there was so much work to be done and he couldn't afford to hire more help. Not with the season and its attendant expenses looming only a few weeks ahead.

He could identify March's light, clear laugh and Abigail's rather dry, deep chuckle, mingled with a man's lower tones. Brent opened the door and went in, a faint grin curving his own mouth at the sound of so much jollity.... He had to stare hard at the blond young man bending over the dining table before he realized who he was. And even then he could scarcely credit his senses.

Griff Morgan's mere presence in Abigail's little house was strange enough. But for him to be arranging plates and silver on the snowy cloth, while he tossed badinage across his shoulder to March and Abigail in the kitchen beyond, was entirely unbelievable! Griff glanced up then and saw Brent and came around the table toward him, a couple of forks still grasped in his left hand, his right extended in friendly fashion.

"Hello, Randolph. It's great to see you again."

Griff's tone was as friendly as his manner, rather more friendly. Brent thought, than their very slight acquaintance warranted. True, Griff had the reputation of being a good fellow, but the infrequent occasions when he and Brent had fished together had scarcely laid the groundwork for this sudden outburst of camaraderie.

Shaking hands with Griff, greeting him a trifle awkwardly, Brent felt as though he were a stranger in his own home, being welcomed and put at ease by pleasant host whose casual cordiality served to accent the stiffness and restraint that hampered his own efforts at conversation. And the absurd fancy persisted, even after March appeared, drawn by the sound of voices. She crossed the room quickly, to tuck her hand through Brent's arm, to lay her cheek against his sleeve in a brief caress.

"Darling, I thought you'd never come. Hurry and get cleaned up. Dinner's almost ready."

Miraculously, she was her normal self again, smiling, radiant, the March Brent had missed of late and worried over. She wore a scarlet frock the liked, pencil-slim, artfully simple. Excitement had lit flames in her dark eyes, she was so lovely that Brent felt his heart lift within him, quick with pride and with a kind of high exultance. But the glimpse of Griff Morgan's face then and the frank admiration in the assured blue gaze struck him like a blow. Could March, Brent wondered, be the cause of the sudden warmth in Griff's manner toward him? Something, not quite resentment, not quite foreboding, stirred in him. But that was absurd, he told himself, striving to dismiss the feeling. No more absurd, the something within him answered, than that Griff should be here at all, making himself so thoroughly at home, exerting the full facile strength of his undeniable charm on all of them.

As the evening progressed, Brent found it increasingly hard to credit what he knew to be a fact, namely that March's and Griff's acquaintanceship was enclosed in the small compass of a single afternoon. They were so infinitely at ease with each other, speaking the same gay language, making Brent feel, by comparison, dull and heavy-witted. Making him feel shut out and lonely, so that he retired more and more within himself, viewing the cozy scene in his grandmother's living-room, not as a participant, but as a spectator. Abigail, as well as March, seemed to have fallen completely under the spell of their guest's engaging personality. Griff treated her with charming deference, encouraging her to draw out her rich store of reminiscences, listening with rapt attention while she related tales of Kenosha's colorful logging days.

Never before had his grandmother's stories failed to hold Brent's attention. But tonight his thoughts wandered and the unreasoning resentment within him grew, out of all proportion to its cause.... It was almost midnight before Griff rose to go. "This has been grand, Mrs. Randolph," he told Abigail. And then, turning to March, "Thanks for taking pity on me. I'll do as much for you one day. I'm leaving in the morning, but I'll be back later on. We must see a lot of each other—after all of us." He added, shaking hands with Brent. When he had gone the room seemed empty for a moment and very still. Then Abigail yawned and began to grumble good-humoredly. "I don't know when I've stayed up so late, or talked so much—or had such a good time." She chuckled reminiscently. "That's a very pleasant young man. I'm glad you brought him home, March. The Morgans have been coming to Kenosha for years, but I never met him before."

She said good-night then and went off to bed. The two who were left heard her door close with a brisk finality. March sat in silence, looking up into Brent's face. But it was guarded against her inquiring scrutiny. She could make nothing of his mood.

She said gently, "You're tired, aren't you?"

He was tired. Too tired and too lost in anger to be moved by gentleness.

"I thought he'd never go!" March smiled faintly and stretched her arms high in a lazy gesture. Then she said, "But we were having such fun, darling. I had no idea it was so late. I don't think Griff did, either."

Her casual and unthinking use of Morgan's nickname added fuel to Brent's wrath.

His tone was grim. Griff, is it? You sound as though you'd known him years instead of hours!"

March's gaze widened. She couldn't believe he was serious. She asked lightly, "Can you imagine calling him 'Mr. Morgan' very long? He just isn't the type."

"I can tell you the type he is," Brent offered. His eyes were blazing now, his voice husky with hurt and rage. He would have shouted but for his grandmother's nearness and the danger of arousing her.

"Hanging around here, playing up to Gran and me, after he meets you! All this stuff about seeing a lot of each other this summer—he never felt like that before! Griff Morgan has his own friends, the hard drinking bunch of loafers he brings up for the summer, the other wealthy people whose estates are scattered around the lake. We're no part of his crowd. We aren't going to be!"

March's eyes were blazing, too. She was on her feet now, facing Brent furiously, her hands tightly clenched at her sides. "If he wants to see me this summer, I won't object! It'll be something to look forward to while you're so busy—something gay and amusing. Maybe you won't fit into his crowd, but I will!"

CLEVELAND — When a newspaper photographer called at the home of John and Anna Schneider here recently to take their golden wedding anniversary picture for his paper, Mr. Schneider became so excited that he suffered a fatal heart attack.

More Power to Thrift—more Thrift from Power

MAYBE you wonder what a big car like Buick is doing talking about economy.

All right, we'll tell you.

Most people would be willing to spend a little extra for what Buick has to offer—style, size, room, steadiness, durability—if part of that extra could be paid back through lower operating costs.

Especially they would like really satisfying performance—quick take-off, easy hill-climbing, sure power, fast response—if they could have it in a car that's stingy with gasoline.

That's what we've given them—through the extra power in this 1941 Buick.

The added wallop of FIREBALL engine design and Compound Carburetion lets us use more thrifty gear ratios, saving money without complicating extra gears or mechanisms.

And the tremendous reserve-power in these Buick engines—at 40, for instance, you have as much as 85% of your power "on call"—still permits the flashing getaway, the swooping hill-climb, the sure lift out of pinches you once had to buy with heavy gasoline consumption.

So we say—more power to thrift—it helps put Buick thrill and comfort within easy reach.

And the reason is—more thrift from power—from abler engines.

It all adds up to the sensation of the year—the car you ought to see first—the brilliant, able beauty your Buick dealer has waiting for you.
